SENATOR REED IN SPEECH PRAISES AND HITS 'NEW DEAL'

Waste of Food Scored by Senator in Philadelphia Address

HITS NUISANCE TAXES

Paying Tax On Every Paper Bag, Towel and Napkin

PHILADELPHIA, Apr. 6.—Senator David A. Reed praised and criticized the "new deal" in an address before more than 1000 persons last night at a meeting of the Big Four Fathers' Association in the Olney High School, Mascher street and Duncannon ave.

The senior Senator from Pennsylvania launched into a bitter attack on the agriculture program of the Roosevelt administration, declaring that it "is designed primarily for the benefit of the cotton farmers of the South and the one-crop wheat and corn-hog farmers of the Middle West."

"George III" was the label he placed on Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, while discussing the arbitrary power intrusted to that official to levy taxes in connection with the paper code.

"Under the 'new deal,' said Senator Reed, '6,000,000 hogs were slaughtered and their carcasses disposed of, instead of being used to feed the destitute in many of the large cities of the country.'

"One hundred and twenty million dollars were appropriated to enable the Southern planters to plough under their crops. I am sure that, if such conditions continue to exist, the country is headed in the wrong direction. We must pay the farmers to produce more instead of paying them to produce less."

"In order to raise money to enable the growers in certain sections of the country to destroy their crops, the 'new deal' has given a single official the power to raise taxes to defray these expenses."

"At this minute we are paying a tax on every paper napkin, every paper towel and every paper bag and a considerable portion of this tax is going to the planters who have been ploughing under their crops."

Senator Reed made reference to the historic Boston Tea Party, which was brought about by taxation without representation. "We ought to throw all the bags into the river," he exclaimed. "Because of his power to levy taxes," he said, "the Secretary of Agriculture is the George III of our country."

In his opening remarks, the Senator made known his interest in the youth of the United States and said he wondered "what kind of a country we are going to leave them."

"I am terribly worried about the things that are being done to our system of government under the so-called 'new deal.' When it was started the NRA had many good features in it. It did improve the morale of our people. It deserves credit, too, for eliminating the sweatshops and also the child labor problem in the South."

Reed launched into an attack on the price fixing codes of the NRA declaring that it affected the cost of living of every person in the United States.

Stuart S. Buzby, president of the association, presided at the business meeting and entertainment that preceded the address by Senator Reed. Dr. Edwin Y. Montanye, principal of the Olney High School, introduced the Senator. Another speaker was Congressman George W. Edmonds. Congressman George P. Darrow, who was also scheduled to speak, was unable to attend because of illness.

Before leaving Washington for Philadelphia yesterday afternoon, Senator Reed issued a formal statement dealing with the Roosevelt administration's new dairy program. He said:

"For many months now I have been saying both in the Senate and in Pennsylvania that our Pennsylvania farmers are getting little or nothing out of the 'New Deal,' but that on the contrary they are paying more for feed, clothing, supplies, equipment and everything else that goes into the cost of farming as well as the cost of living. I have said further that so far as I could discover, the agricultural program of the present administration, except as it contemplates the extension of credit and banking facilities to farmers, the machinery for which was set up under preceding administrations, is designed primarily for the benefit of the cotton farmers of the South and the one-crop wheat and corn-hog farmers of the Middle West."

"This view finds fresh confirmation in the action of Pennsylvania dairymen in Philadelphia on Tuesday of this week in denouncing and rejecting the dairy program of the AAA."

"They objected to any further curtailment of milk production in Pennsylvania, to the proposed processing taxes on dairy products, and to any further price manipulation which might curtail the consumption of milk."

"Pennsylvania dairymen have reduced their production to a point where it is almost balanced with the demand. A pick-up in business and employment, coupled with an increase

STORAGE RESERVOIRS FOR CANAL WOULD BE FIVE

In Plans Under Advisement for Project in the French Creek-Alegheny Region

POWER POSSIBILITY

(Note: This is the third of a series of articles on the canal routes and flood control projects now under consideration in Pennsylvania and Ohio.)

By James C. Kinkaid
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

MEADVILLE, Apr. 6.—(INS)—Within a score of miles of this community of 16,000 lies the heart and soul of the French Creek-Alegheny River canalization project—the water supply for the summit level.

Water is needed for canals. Millions of gallons must be stored for seasons when lack of precipitation retards streams to low levels.

The Allegheny watershed, which passes near Meadville, is the center of the two canal projects whose completion some believe would mark a "new deal" in the economic life of Pennsylvania. These are the French Creek-Alegheny River and the Beaver—Mahoning—Ashtabula River routes.

Under plans now being considered by the U. S. Engineering Department, the water supply for the summit level of the first of these routes would be derived from the French Creek drainage area, which lies at the proper elevation to be available by feeder canals and from drainage immediately tributary to the summit level.

Five storage reservoirs are called for in the plans now under advisement. They would be known as the Cusawaga, Bemus, and French Creek "A," "B," and "C" reservoirs. All of these reservoirs are located east of the proposed canal route.

The total area of these five reservoirs would be a fraction over 26 square miles with an available storage capacity of 10,733,000,000 cubic feet. Details of each are:

Cusawaga: Located at 1100 feet above sea level, this reservoir is 11.6 miles in area. Its total available storage capacity would be 1,817,000,000.

Bemus: 1,096 feet above sea level; 1.25 square miles in area; available storage capacity, 582,000,000.

French Creek "A": 1,280 feet above sea level; 3.56 square miles in area; available storage capacity, 2,130,000,000.

French Creek "B": 1,420 feet above sea level; seven square miles in area; available storage capacity, 3,844,000,000.

French Creek "C": 1,340 feet above sea level, 2.60 square miles in area; available storage capacity, 2,400,000,000.

The operations of the above reservoir in supplying the proposed canal with water would be that waters from the last three reservoirs listed would flow through the French Creek to the Bemus reservoir and from there by feeder to Conneaut Lake, located at a sea level elevation of 1,072 feet, the summit of the canal.

In addition to this flow of water, the Bemus and Cusawaga reservoirs would also be connected by a feeder and the same feeder mentioned above would be used in carrying water into Conneaut Lake.

Federal engineers admit there might be some possibility of development of water power in the feeder canal and from the storage reservoirs, but they have not given this matter detailed consideration in their survey in that such development would not in any case materially affect the total cost of the navigation projects.

(The next article discusses the water supply for the "short route" canal.)

"HELP YOURSELF" GOES OVER BIG ON OPENING NIGHT AND THE AUDIENCE IS VERY MUCH DELIGHTED WITH IT

Participants Are Given Generous Applause Time After Time

GIVEN IN THREE ACTS

Production Full of Humor and Interesting Situations Throughout

Bristol was treated last evening — treated to one of the gayest and most stupendous musical comedies staged here in years.

When "Help Yourself," a swift-moving, modern musical comedy, was sponsored by the Junior Women's Clubs of Bucks County, and directed and staged by Violet Benton McClure, of New York, men, women and children from all parts of Bucks County helped themselves to an evening of gaiety, and came away feeling years younger.

The lighting, laughing production was packed with humor, and the choruses of beautiful girls and of rhythmic stepping boys "did themselves proud."

Each and every lead-character took his and her part to perfection, proving that excellent choice was made of types for the interesting parts.

Divided into three acts, the interesting story unfolded in a manner that delighted the large audience. The story revolved around the Austin family, Mrs. Austin (Mrs. Parke Wetherill) being much impressed by their newly-acquired wealth. Her social aspirations were much to the fore, to the discomfiture of her spouse, who was impersonated by Percy G. Ford. The father, ill at ease at all times because his ambitious wife would not permit him to be at his kind of ease about the house, aided and abetted his daughter, Hope, for whom Mrs. Austin had plans in the way of matrimony. The part of Hope was well taken by Miss Verna Mather, Langhorne.

Horace Reginald Ripley, an extremely artistic artist, was in reality Clarence Rambo Powell, but Powell stepped from his real self into a most difficult character which he took magnificently. Horace brought down the house time and time again, and in true artistic style announced after his co-workers stated musically they were going to set the world on fire, that he was "going to cause the universe to become ignited."

Mrs. Austin's favor as far as Hope was concerned, was for Horace, but when Hope's choice, Barton Randall (Edward Landreth) became the much-heralded author of a book, "Help Yourself," in which the artistic artist Horace collaborated, the mother's attitude changed miraculously, and all ended happily. Horace was superb in his characterization, and Randall impressed all with his high-powered salesmanship methods.

An excellent bit of pantomime was provided by Austin and Stevens, the butler with a high sense of responsibility (Robert W. Swift, Jr.), in the first act, when the latter following out

ARREST ANDALUSIA MAN AS HE REPORTS CAR GONE

John D. Gilbert, 38, Held For Further Hearing Next Monday

CAR FOUND ABANDONED

PHILADELPHIA, Apr. 6.—John D. Gilbert, 38, Andalusia, Bucks County, was arrested Wednesday when he reported his automobile stolen to police of the Paul and Ruan streets station, Frankford.

Police stated him on charges of suspicion of hit-run driving, assault and battery and collision in connection with an accident a short time earlier in which William J. Dougherty, of 5502 Torresdale avenue, was injured.

Following treatment at Frankford Hospital, Dougherty gave police a description of the machine which had collided with his at Darrah and Fillmore streets. The description corresponded with Gilbert's automobile, found abandoned at Tackawanna and Harrison streets.

Gilbert changed his story at a hearing later before Magistrate Dougherty, saying he had loaned the car to a friend, who told him of the accident and then fled. He was held in $500 bail for a further hearing next Monday.

BUCKS COUNTY SPELLER LOSES IN STATE CONTEST

Simon S. Lint, Milford Square, Was the 26th to Fail Wednesday

HOFFMAN ONE JUDGE

Bucks county's representative in the Pennsylvania State spelling championship, held in Harrisburg Wednesday, was eliminated when he left a very important tail-end "e" out of the word "stevedore."

Simon S. Lint, of Milford Square, a former school teacher, won the Bucks county title in competition at the Court House in Doylestown recently. He put up a good battle in Harrisburg in the state contest, but finally fell by the wayside with forty-eight other county champions who were spelled down by a 25-year-old Lebanon county resident, William T. Baldwin, Jr.

The contest was sponsored by the Department of Public Instruction as part of its program commemorating the 100th anniversary of free schools in Pennsylvania.

Champs from 49 counties lined up for the show-down. They were spelled down rapidly and by noon Wednesday only a dozen champs remained.

The first to go down was an alternate from Berks county, Oliver M. Mead, of Shanesville, who missed on "laceration" when he placed an "s" where the third letter "c" belongs.

The word barrage ceased when J. R. Brotherton, of Luzerne county, missed on "dietetics," leaving the state champion Baldwin standing alone.

Some of the words spelled in this interesting contest included cenotaph, asphyxiate, paradigm, gullibility, chenille and irascible.

The two remaining contestants succeeded with recurrence, Fascism, picknicking, calisthenics, conceded and delicatessen.

Montgomery county's champ, Mrs. John O. Wilson, missed the word "progenitor."

Houston Dunn, Jr., Held In Auto Accident Case

Houston Dunn, Jr., 23, Bristol Township, was held for further hearing yesterday by Magistrate Hamberg on a charge of assault and battery by automobile.

The defendant, Meyer Fleisher, of Wilkes-Barre, was injured two weeks ago when his car collided with Dunn's at 55th and Chestnut streets. He has not recovered sufficiently to appear at a hearing, his attorney said. Dunn is a son of Houston Dunn, prominent insurance broker, and Mrs. Elsie Taylor Dunn, grand opera patron.

PAUL MCGINLEY,
LOUIS SEIFERT,

MAY DISCONTINUE MUSIC CONTESTS IN YOUTH WEEK

More Interest Must Be Shown, Rules the Committee

MUST ENTER AT ONCE

Announces Classes for Track and Field Events on May 5th

Unless more interest is shown in the music events planned for Youth Week this feature will be dropped. This was the sentiment of the meeting held last night. Lack of interest on the part of contestants in the harmonica and piano contests may cause the music committee to discontinue these two events. Frank Pfeiffer, chairman of the music committee, who has been keenly interested in the Boys' Week since the inauguration of the movement, asked the members of the general committee to wait until next week, before definitely deciding not to continue the music features.

If boys and girls who are interested in music desire these events to be continued, they must act at once and communicate with Mr. Pfeiffer.

General chairman, Jacob C. Schmidt, Sr., received the reports of the other committees, and expressed his pleasure with the way the plans are progressing.

The meeting, last night, was held in the Elks Home.

W. Dougherty, coach at the Bristol high school, who will have charge of the track and field events, says that his committee plans in making the field day, the biggest ever held here. It will start at 10 o'clock, Saturday, May 5th, with a program of 24 events in four classes (A) and (B) for both boys and girls.

The following are the events:
Class A—Boys: High jump, broad jump, 75-yard dash, 100-yard dash, shot put, (12 pounds), one mile relay.

Class A—Girls: High jump, 75-yard dash, broad jump, basketball throw, baseball throw, quarter mile relay.

Class B—Boys: Broad jump, 50-yard dash (under 10), half mile relay, high jump, 75-yard dash, shot put (eight pounds).

Class B—Girls: Broad jump, 50-yard dash (under 10), quarter mile relay, baseball throw, high jump, basketball throw.

Grange Members Not Impressed By Recovery Act

LANGHORNE, April 6.—That the members of Middletown Grange were not very favorably impressed with the activities of the National Recovery Act, especially in reference to bringing about assistance to the farmers, was brought out in a general discussion at a meeting of this group of Patrons of Husbandry held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thompson, here.

The main feature of the literary program which was in charge of the lecturer, Mrs. Hannah G. C. Pickering, was a discussion of the question, "How has the National Recovery Act affected farming?" This was taken up by a large number of the members in attendance and the general opinion seemed to be that just as the other agricultural plans had failed to assist the farmers, the N. R. A. has also failed.

It was stated by the members that the National Recovery Act can give no assurance of increased wholesale market prices, but on the other hand it has caused an increase in the cost of practically all the articles which the farmer must buy.

Mrs. Georgianna Thompson contributed to the literary hour by giving a reading on home made entertainment. Members responded to roll call by telling what they had accomplished thus far this Spring. Some stated that they had completed house cleaning, others that they had finished the pruning of shrubs and others said they are getting their implements ready for work this Summer.

At the conclusion of the program a number of games and refreshments were enjoyed. The next meeting of the Grange will take place at the Friends' school house, here, on Wednesday evening, April 18. The program for that meeting has not as yet been announced.

HIPPOLYTIAN

A group of undergraduates in one of the universities has formed an organization known as the Hippolytus Club. Its avowed purpose is to shatter the domination of the modern Eves.

This bunch of reformers, however, is starting out under a handicap, for the bird whose name their club bears paid with his life for the smaller undertaking. Before their graduate days they will submit as others before them.

Not satisfied with having entered every branch of industry as well as the professions, women have insisted upon and obtained the right to sit on juries and to play politics. A certain legal light insists that since the adoption of the suffrage amendment husbands have assumed a place of relative obscurity.

The number of men to conquer the English Channel was negative, while the women who were accomplishing the feat became so numerous it ceased to be an achievement worthy of front page recognition. The word "obey" has been deleted from the marriage ceremony, and women have invaded every one of man's sacred precincts of old, including the barber shop, smoking car and tobacco store.

The probability of mere man ever regaining his domination over women, if he ever had it, is as remote as the speechless age. As a matter of fact, women's new position is not entirely to be wondered at, since man as a class is slow about accepting new ideas. Like the "heavenly Chinese" he is pretty well tied to ancestral beliefs. Women turned the tables with some original ideas. Man must think up some better ones if he would again subjugate the fair sex.

NOTHING NEW

Today Shakespeare could not say with equal truth as of his own day that "To gild refined gold, to paint the lily, to throw a perfume on the violet, is wasteful and ridiculous excess." Gold has to be tinted red or white or even green now to please the modern seeker for novelty, while as for lilies, they simply have to be painted all the colors of the rainbow if they are to get by.

Fifty clerks sell three million dollars' worth of beauty accessories over the counter in one department store in New York City in a year. The customers are flappers, faded dowagers and "nice young men," in that order. It comes high, this beauty stuff, but they must have it.

One can understand the flapper and her efforts at decorative art in her own lips, cheeks and eyebrows, and it always has been the unshaken prerogative of dowagers to evade the hue of advancing years if so disposed. But the "nice young men"—what is red-blooded masculinity of the old school to think of them?

It cannot be. There must be some mistake. It is hard for the most liberal reactionary to conceive of any man, young or old, who would indulge in scented cold cream, soft face powder and lipsticks. And yet it must be conceded that before masculinity found powder, perfume and dainty laces unbecoming it went in for them on a scale that would make the "nice young men" seem like rough pioneers in comparison. These flapping youths with artificial flame painted on their faces have originated or discovered nothing.

It's fair enough. The West pans gold and the East pans silver.

'THE LONE WOLF'S SON'

by LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

SYNOPSIS

Aboard, the S.S. "Navarre," bound for America, Michael Lanyard, reformed "Lone Wolf" of crookdom, is reunited with his son whom he thought dead. Lanyard is disappointed to learn that the boy, traveling under the name "Maurice Parry," is a thief, but he hopes his son's interest in Fanno Crozier, lovely daughter of the wealthy Mrs. Fay Crozier, will prove a good influence. Maurice steals the famous Habsburg emeralds from Mrs. Crozier, substituting counterfeits. Lanyard retrieves the gems for Fay. In a bridge game, Lanyard exposes two gangsters, "Jack Knice" and Anderson, and "English Archie," for cheating his son. Detective Crane warns Lanyard against their revenge. Soon the emeralds are stolen again and Lanyard is suspected when he refuses to name the first thief. M. Plon, French detective, and Captain Pascal are confident of Lanyard's guilt when they find the jewels in the latter's trunk, only to learn that they are the counterfeits. Fay gallantly says that she gave the zircons (false gems) to Lanyard as souvenirs. Lanyard is puzzled, for he had returned these to Maurice, but he maintains a defiant attitude toward the officers. Just as the captain orders Lanyard confined in his cabin until he reveals the culprit's name, the pursuer appears with the genuine emeralds, which were carelessly wrapped and left on his desk with instructions that they be deposited in the safe for Mme. Crozier. To prove her faith in Lanyard, Fay asks him to re-wrap and return them to the pursuer. Embarrassed, the captain apologizes and withdraws with Plon. Despite the evidence, Lanyard cannot conceive of Maurice planting the zircons in his trunk. Fay learns from Fanno that Maurice is Lanyard's son. Father and son lunch together.

CHAPTER XV

"Mind telling what Fanno's mother has been getting at you about?" Maurice asked.

"Everything that I wasn't prepared to tell her about you, naturally. I had hoped to have this talk before we took the ship into our confidence; but you were too busy telling Fanno the first thing—"

"Sorry, sir. She had it out of me before I knew what she was after."

"Well, since the mischief's done—how did you account for your conspicuously easy circumstances of a young man without visible means of support?"

"I had to think quick, sir; and the first thing I thought of was probably as good a lie as any," the seaman laughed. "—that after a life of many vicissitudes, I had struck it rich with a winning ticket in the Calcutta Sweepstakes. As a matter of fact, there was a chap in London named Parry who pulled in a small fortune at the last drawing."

"And the name Parry; how did you explain that?"

"Oh, that! I told her it was the name of the old couple in Antwerp that adopted me."

"Unhappy boy!"

"How's that, sir?"

"Too gifted a liar—marked as one predestined to become prematurely just the usual husband!"

"No fear!" Maurice had an arrogant laugh. "I'll never marry."

"Good news—for some young woman."

"Oh, I don't know!"

Lanyard was put to it to suppress an indulgent smile when he saw a flush accompany that flash. The boy was as vain as a pretty girl.

"You aren't seriously suggesting—are you, Maurice, that you think a woman ought to consider herself lucky if she woke up some fine morning to find she had married a thief?"

"See here, sir!"

But on that sharp beginning Maurice with an unmistakable effort rested while his flush deepened, his mouth grew taut, and temper played like summer lightning in the backs of his shadowed eyes.

"Something?" Lanyard nevertheless blandly prompted.

"I wish you wouldn't take that line with me." The boy's voice trembled. "It's meant a lot to me to see you."

find you—and in the position you've carved out for yourself, respected, admired, and so generally liked. I want to like you, too, and admire you, but I can't unless you'll let me respect you. All this is no good, sir, unless we're on the level with each other."

"But I am sure you are on the level with me, my boy."

"You may be; I am. I don't pretend to be repentant or wanting to be reformed or anything else that's stupid. If I followed in your footsteps without knowing it, I guess it was in my blood. And anyway, I've made a go of it; I've done pretty well at the game, and I'm free to to order for Carl, deposed Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary. Carl had been obliged to sell the originals to find money for his war chest when he was planning that last push on Budapest; but there was the legend that no one could wear St. Stephen's Crown who had not in his keeping St. Stephen's seven emeralds; hence, these fakes to deceive his people. Well; all the world knows how that push failed and Carl was shipped off to die in Madiera. . . . How they came into your hands doesn't matter; enough that they have threatened this time to put a father and his long-lost son at loggerheads. Their tale is told."

The arm he drew back described a full sweep and shot a spray of green fire far out over the side.

confess I like it. And I don't admit for a minute I'm any worse than the people that pay me the living the world owes me. I don't rob the wage-earner—but the rich do, every last one of them, whose playthings I go after. There's hardly one I've robbed who came by his wealth by working for it; and if there ever was one, he was so well fixed he never missed the little I took from him."

"Yes, yes. All very interesting to you, no doubt, but to me far too old a story," Lanyard returned; "—souvenir de ma jeunesse, I assure you. Everything you say I said in my time, before you were born. What of it? Is there a point?"

"Can you doubt it? It's fairly obvious, I should think; I'm not a hypocrite. I mean to say, I'm on the level with you. Why can't you be with me?"

At this Lanyard sat back and stared in wonder.

"We are at cross-purposes," he gravely announced. "It is evident that you think I have given you some cause for grievance; and I can honestly lay the same accusation against you. Perhaps we can get at it best if you will assist me at a simple rite." He thrust back his chair. "It will only take a minute—there is plenty of time before the waiter brings the file. If you don't mind—"

At the end of a blank instant the boy got up and followed out to the deck.

"There couldn't be a better time," Lanyard said, halting at the rail and glancing fore and aft at the ranks of empty deck-chairs, "with everybody at luncheon, for this solemn occasion. Did I tell you it was a burial at sea you were to witness?" He brought up from a pocket a handful of green stones. "Look your last on these graves of ill and I'm gone. They have made mischief every time they have come to light."

"What's meant a lot to me to see you."

COMMUNICATION

Editor, Courier.

Sir:—It may be of interest to tax payers of Bensalem Township to learn there has been a reduction in taxes. The past rate was 10 mills; the reduction is 3 mills, which makes the present rate 7 mills.

While this material reduction is not substantial, it indicates what can be accomplished when the concerted efforts of a unified group are employed.

to carry out a sorely needed change. This long and overdue rate change was brought about by the Bensalem Township Taxpayers' Association of Bucks County.

The property owners of this Township, who are now bent forward and becoming stooped over by the burdensome and overloaded taxes, will realize that if they unstintingly bend their efforts and co-operate with the Bensalem Township Taxpayers' Association, not only will this rate of taxation be further lowered, but a change in the tax base can be made.

Yours respectfully,
JOSEPH S. RABY,
Chairman of Publicity.

of consumption which would be sure to follow, would solve this problem completely, provided production is not further increased. If in addition the spread between the farmer and the consumer can be further reduced, so that the farmer will get more for his product without increasing the cost to the consumer—and this is possible—such a solution would be better than any arbitrary or artificial program for processing taxes which might or might not be returned to the dairymen in bonuses for reducing production.

"The dairymen themselves, with the assistance of the State government when they want to employ it, are better able to work out this problem than any set of professors in Washington."

"I have been in correspondence with dairy farmers all through Pennsylvania, have talked with many of them and have asked the advice of farm leaders in reaching my own conclusions, and I have yet to find one who favors processing taxes on dairy products."

"Help Yourself" Goes Over Big On Opening Night

Mrs. Austin's directions, attempted to supervise the immaculate appearance of Austin, much to the latter's chagrin, and as the two watched bits of threads or imaginary bits float downward after being picked by Stevens from Austin's clothing, the house was regaled with laughter.

Sylvia Winfield, a society girl with considerable line, was impersonated well by Florence Peirce Hanford, and was quite "taken in" with McQuirk, the publicity wizard of the age. In the person of William Gallagher, McQuirk had a brand new line, and well he knew it, showing it in every strut with his purple shirt and green necktie.

Miss Winfield Virginia Tracy stepped into the role of Mabel Brown, a nice girl who was slightly hard-boiled, in splendid style, and did marvelously in helping Horace to become a real "he-man." So well did she succeed that after subduing Schultz, a tough thug, Horace increased the number of thugs he overcame each time the tale was recounted. The part of Schultz was taken by Harold T. Green, Langhorne.

Stubb, an office boy at the "Help Yourself Publishing Company" office, had a ready tongue and knew how to use it. Stubb was impersonated by William T. Hagar, Jr. Phoebe Elizabeth Woodman, Langhorne, did well in the part of Stella, a crusader in the cause of love; and Jenny, the maid, was Frances K. Blanche.

A great ovation was given the numerous choruses, whose work was most meritorious. There were the Society Strutters; the Society Steppers; the Doll Chorus, a group of small boys and girls who played "Drop the Handkerchief;" the Debutantes; the Help Yourself Stags; the Society Promenaders; and the Paraders. The brilliant costumes of the choruses enlivened the swift and rhythmic steps; and the manner in which each number was presented by these dancing groups showed that much time and effort had been spent on the production. "Billy" Gallagher pleased with a specialty buck and wing dance.

The musical climaxes were well executed, both the solo and chorus work being well received. These included: "Who Cares," Sylvia and the Society Strutters; "Waiting For A Sweetheart," Hope, Bart and the Society Steppers; "You're One in a Million Dear," Mr. and Mrs. Austin; "Help Yourself," Bart and choruses; "Marching Feet," Mabel and the Paraders; "Take the Time, Dear," Hope, Bart and Society Debutantes; "I'm Going to Set the World on Fire," McQuirk, Mabel, Stubb and Horace; "Help Yourself," Hope and Bart; "There is Something Nice About Them," Society Steppers and Promenaders.

Hundreds of children under 12 years of age enjoyed a special matinee performance yesterday afternoon. The banner crowd of the three performances is expected this evening, when the final staging of this great production will occur. Tickets are on sale at United Cut Rate Store, Mill street.

TYDOL is protected

Ask the man at the pump

THE finest motor fuel ever sold at the regular gasoline price. That's what we pledged TYDOL to be in 1934. And that's what it is!

And now we seal that pledge of quality by sealing a tag on every TYDOL pump. Behind that tag is a story of the integrity of 22,000 TYDOL dealers. They were determined, in these days of substitution, "cutting" and adulteration... that TYDOL must be protected... there should be no tampering with TYDOL's high quality. So with their cooperation, the makers of TYDOL developed a patented device... a "Secret Detector."

This device shows instantly the slightest impurity or adulteration in TYDOL. It is used in thousands of tests, made day and night, every inch of the way from the refinery to your car.

When you ask for TYDOL you get TYDOL! You get the highest anti-knock, the most powerful gasoline ever sold at the regular gas price. You get the gasoline that is different... that actually lubricates as it drives. The gasoline that is best for your motor... and the most for your money.
